

DKG — Who we are

The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International is a professional honor society of top women educators from around the world promoting excellence in education. Established in 1929, Delta Kappa Gamma is just for women and provides members with valuable professional and personal growth opportunities, including leadership development.

A Heritage Rich in History

The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International was formed in 1929 when a dozen pioneering women became inspired to unite, recognize and help advance women educators. That year, these founding women in Austin, Texas, started the The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, named for the initial letters of three greek words meaning “key women teachers.” Today, the renowned association has chapters in 17 countries and represents more than 95,000 of the world’s most respected women educators.

TAKE HOME RELEVANT TEACHING IDEAS

This interactive workshop focuses on examining one's cultural lens and learning strategies to improve the academic achievement of ALL students. Dr. Bonnie Davis discusses culturally responsive instruction with an emphasis on students "who don't look like you." Beginning with an examination of one's cultural lens, Bonnie leads participants through reflection and collegial conversation.

Because more than 80% of today's classroom teachers are white women, the cultural norms and "hidden rules" of white women influence the curriculum taught and the relationships built with students and colleagues; therefore, Bonnie spends time uncovering the hidden rules and cultural norms of white women so participants can learn "what they don't know they don't know" about their behaviors and how they impact others both inside of and outside of the classroom, including their professional and personal lives.

Using brain-based instructional strategies, Bonnie explores how to create schools that honor every voice and function as "culturally considerate" places of learning. Participants will practice her award-winning strategies using role playing, writing, discussion, and media during a lively, fun, interactive all-day session which allows time for integration of the new knowledge.

Participants will leave the workshop with a new awareness of their cultural lens and the hidden rules they practice as well as instructional strategies to improve student achievement. This presentation is based on material in Bonnie's book, How to Teach Students Who Don't Look Like You: Culturally Relevant Teaching Strategies.
