

Dear Educational Leader,

Invite your faculty to join you in an exciting professional development opportunity and explore strategies for teaching in a culturally diverse classroom. Teachers and administrators in your area could benefit from training available in New York City, July 23, 2012. Dr. Bonnie Davis will present a one-day seminar where she will discuss the award-winning techniques presented in her book, How to Teach Students Who Don't Look Like You: Culturally Relevant Teaching Strategies. Dr. Davis currently serves as a consultant to school districts and professional organizations in areas such as literacy coaching and culturally proficient instruction.

The seminar is sponsored by The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, a professional honor society for key women educators. The $75 cost includes the seminar, lunch and Dr. Davis' workbook (DKG members receive a discount). The seminar will be held on Monday, July 23, 2012, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers, 7th Avenue and 52nd Street, New York, NY.

To register, please visit www.dkg.org no later than July 1, 2012, and choose the "Register for the Preconvention Seminar with Dr. Bonnie Davis" icon. For further information, you may contact Virginia Pearson at 1-888-762-4685 ext. 114 or virginiap@dkg.org.
